

TimeOut

Roy Oxlade

Alison Jacques Gallery, Fitzrovia

November 2019

Roy Oxlade 'Yellow Cable' (2003) Image courtesy of Alison Jacques Gallery, London © Estate of Roy Oxlade

Play 'spot the everyday item' with this exhibition of paintings and drawings by Roy Oxlade. The artist, who was married to Rose Wylie, included the forms of many items found around their house in Kent, such as lemon squeezers, lamps and scissors in his paintings. The end results, however, are anything but mundane. Bold strokes of colour, semi-abstract passages and figurative shapes all feature in his always-worth-seeing art. This show displays works made between 1978 - 2006.